The snow was coming down quickly on the tarmac in Anchorage, Alaska, because our area was receiving record snowfall.

My family and I were in a rumbling 737, waiting for it to take off. But instead of proceeding to the runway, the captain announced that the airplane would need to be deiced. We waited in apprehension, not knowing if we would be stuck in Anchorage all night. But after two hours, the deicing process was finished, and the plane finally took off. It was an uncomfortable and mostly sleepless night, so when we arrived in New Orleans, Louisiana, the following day, we were all rather delirious.

CONTRIBUTE TO THE NEEDS OF THE SAINTS AND SEEK TO SHOW HOSPITALITY. ROMANS 12:13

Typically, we would have had to wait for the rigmarole of renting a car to be over before we could leave. However, this time we did not have to wait, because John from Righteous Rides arrived to pick us up at the doors of the New Orleans Airport. He took us to First Baptist Church, where Tina kindly greeted us and left us a roomy van with goody bags. You can't imagine what a blessing it was to be taken care of in this way after a seventeen-hour-long trip!

Peter says to "Show hospitality to one another without grumbling (2 Pet. 4:9)," which this ministry certainly did for us. We are grateful for Righteous Rides.
